The Academic Success Programs faculty in University College on the Tempe Campus at Arizona State University invites applications for one or more Lecturer positions for Academic Year 2016-2017. The successful candidate will demonstrate excellent in-class instruction at the undergraduate level and a passion for teaching in an interdisciplinary environment that serves students from all colleges and majors; organize and conduct research to submit to conferences and journals, facilitate collaborative curriculum development among LEAD cohort faculty, coordinate weekly LEAD faculty meetings, coach LEAD faculty on student-centric pedagogy and interventions; conduct classroom observations for LEAD faculty; and other duties as assigned to support the success of the courses and program. This Lecturer position is a fixed-term, benefits-eligible, academic-year appointment with no tenure implications. Renewal is contingent upon availability of funds, satisfactory performance, and the needs of the university. Salary is competitive and dependent upon qualifications, experience and rank.

The LEAD Project is an interdisciplinary cohort-based initiative designed to support incoming freshman students by providing an intimate and profound learning experience. The faculty work together to develop one cohesive curriculum across different subject areas. The students enroll in 7 credits in the fall and 7 credits in the spring. Students learn how to think critically and manage a real-world project from inception to completion, developing skills such as creativity, communication, problem-solving and teamwork.

General Information: Arizona State University is a comprehensive public research university recently named #1 in the United States for innovation, followed by #2 Stanford and #3 MIT. We measure our success not by whom we exclude, but rather by whom we include and how they succeed; advancing research and discovery of public value; and assuming fundamental responsibility for the economic, social, cultural and overall health of the communities we serve. ASU’s College of Letters and Sciences is home to innovative teachers who are guided by educational access, student success, applied learning, and interdisciplinary inquiry. The faculty of Interdisciplinary and Liberal Studies is a dynamic, creative and collegial community that teaches face-to-face and online classes to more than 3,500 students majoring in degrees at ASU. We understand there are many paths to achieving a university education, and we build undergraduate and graduate degree programs and pathways that are flexible and relevant for a rapidly changing world.
