Problem

Though ASU has already attempted to make mechanisms to protect students' safety on campus, many students, especially women, have felt they have been ineffective.

Background

According to ASU Clery Time Report of the fall semester of 2021, there are over 100 occurrences of crimes reported in ASU parking areas. 4 of these crimes were instances of physical and sexual assault. This absurd amount of crime has left ASU students fearful to walk to their cars that are parked on campus. This is a significant indication of the work that needs to be done by ASU to improve the student sense of security on campus.

Solution

These solutions include light fixtures, increased security, and security cameras. According to a survey done by AAC LEAD surveyors, 81% of responders said there needs to be more lighting in garages/lots, 81% said there needs to be security cameras in all parking lots/garages, and 78.5% of survey respondents said there should video surveillance gives accurate descriptions of incidents that have occurred and tends to prevent crime.

This would also allow for security guards patrolling the area to arrive at the scene quicker and enable officers to have evidence that a crime was committed.
